- 1) Budget: Please see the attached document "Transnational Actors Budget."
- 2) Overview of Workshop: The workshop included presentations by each participant on a different transnational actor involved in armed conflict and/or peace processes. We discussed ways in which the papers presented might be harmonized so as to allow for systematic comparison. As well, participants discussed the development of a common theoretical framework which would allow for easier comparing and contrasting of the disparate array of actors involved in peace and conflict. Participants are now revising their papers in response to the feedback received at the workshop. An expanded workshop will be held at Memorial University, St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada in July 2014 where 20 scholars will meet (including the five present at the ISA workshop) to present and finalize their work which will be published in an edited volume.
- 3) During the ISA, the conveners of the workshop, Miriam Anderson and David Malet, met with the commissioning editor of Georgetown University Press who agreed to put our manuscript, entitled Transnational Actors in War and Peace under review in 2014-2015. The manuscript will be comprised of contributions by the workshop participants in addition to those by additional scholars.
