We are pleased to welcome you to the Central and East European International Studies Association (CEEISA) – International Studies Association (ISA) Joint International Conference. We are delighted to be able to have our meeting held in the beautiful and vibrant city of Ljubljana.

The University of Ljubljana has been a major center of International Relations teaching and research in Central and Eastern Europe for many years. Its chair of International Relations was one of the two founding members of the Central and Eastern European International Studies Association. Moreover, CEEISA’s flagship “Journal of International Relations and Development (JIRD)” has been established at the University of Ljubljana’s Centre of International Relations (CIR), and it is to a large extent due to the tireless efforts of the Ljubljana team that it has become a highly professional and visible journal. In 2008, the University of Ljubljana hosted the second Global International Studies Conference of the World International Studies Committee (WISC) that counts CEEISA and ISA amongst its members. To European graduate students, Ljubljana is known as the home of a popular annual summer school in social science methods and techniques. With a view to this long list of important contributions and achievements, the University of Ljubljana seems a perfect place to host a CEEISA meeting.

With our meeting being held in Ljubljana, the conference’s theme, “The Politics of International Relations” is entirely appropriate for several reasons. First, we meet in a country that has seen tremendous political and social change over the past century. The problems confronting contemporary Slovenia and the Balkan region are certainly different from what they were in early 20th Century, and an exploration of those challenges can tell us much about the issues confronting the world more generally. Clearly, the processes at work in the region are a result of activities at different levels, the international and the domestic. The conference’s theme, then, encourages us to investigate how those levels interact and how they can lead to some monumental shifts in behavior and norms. We are very happy that one of the most distinguished scholars in International Relations and a pioneer in exploring the politicization of international politics, Prof. Michal Zürn, accepted our invitation to give the keynote speech to this conference.

The conference program reflects the vast diversity of themes, theories and approaches that International Relations scholars address. We are also happy to have what we consider a good mix of scholars from Central and Eastern Europe and from other regions.

There are a couple of new additions to content of our program. First, we have “Audience Participation Panels. (APPs)” These panels, generally, have fewer papers and are designed to give paper presenters a little more time to discuss their work. Rather than have discussants, the “APPs” encourage the audience to give direct and immediate feedback on the paper. The panels are modeled on the sessions utilized by the Peace Science Society in its annual meetings. We would like to see how these panels work out here, with an eye towards using them more widely in the future. The Graduate Student Symposium provides an opportunity for graduate students and post-docs to present their research in a small-group panel setting with detailed feedback from senior scholars. They are intended to offer professional development and networking opportunities for graduate students and post-docs.

A number of people have made this meeting possible and we would like to take this opportunity to thank them. First and foremost, Petra Roter, Boštjan Udovič, Ana Bojinović Fenko, Jure Požgan, Marko Lovčec, Anže Burger, Danijel Crnčec, and Iris Koleša of the University of Ljubljana’s Centre for International Relations have been perfect local hosts. We are all particularly indebted to Liz Fausett-Fuhrman, who managed the program very effectively and efficiently. A lot goes on in putting a program together, and Liz has seemingly mastered it all.

We want to repeat that we’re delighted to be able to welcome you to the meeting. We are confident that we will have a productive and enjoyable time.

A MESSAGE FROM PROF. DR. RADO BOHINC

DEAN OF THE FACULTY OF SOCIAL SCIENCES OF
THE UNIVERSITY OF LJUBLJANA

Dear Guests and Colleagues,

It is a great pleasure and privilege to welcome you at the biggest and most important higher education institution in the field of social sciences in Slovenia that is characterised first and foremost by its academic excellence. The history of the Faculty of Social Sciences dates back to 1961 when the Higher School for political science was established, which at that time focused predominantly on the study of the latter. In the years to follow, however, the institution transformed significantly and at the beginning of the 1970s also became part of the prestigious University of Ljubljana that will celebrate its 100th anniversary in the near future.

The Faculty of Social Sciences nowadays brings together numerous scientists from four key areas of social sciences: political science, communication sciences, sociology and cultural studies. All four fields are extremely important for the development of social sciences in Slovenia and beyond, hence the Faculty of Social Sciences additionally and attentively nurtures its ever greater inclusion into the European and international academic arena.

Given such a background and our profound desire to excel constantly and systematically, we are very proud that both associations, CEEISA as well as ISA, have decided to organize the joint conference at this very Faculty. This serves as additional proof that our institution and its Centre of International Relations enjoy a high and wide reputation in the international community; reputation that deserves not only preservation but also further development in the future.

I am confident that we will make you feel most welcome and that you will be leaving our institution full of invaluable impressions. Moreover, I believe this will not be your last visit and that you will be glad to return to the Faculty of Social Sciences – be it on a yet another conference occasion, be it as visiting professors or researchers. The doors of our institution will remain wide open and we will be more than glad to warmly welcome you once again.

Yours sincerely,
Prof. Dr. Rado Bohinc
Dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences
It is my great pleasure to welcome you to the joint CEEISA-ISA convention in Ljubljana on “The Politics of International Relations”. Some of you may have wondered why this title. Do we not research such politics all the time? The programme chairs Glenn Palmer and Wolfgang Wagner wanted to direct our attention towards the way we do it. World politics is about political order. That order is reducible neither to a clash of power and interests in a context of anarchy, nor to the steering capacity in the provision of international public goods. The politics of that order are not just the order’s agency and scope, but also its agential and structural mechanisms, and not the least in its normative content. Therefore, ‘polylateral world’ and indeed ‘multi-order world’ are terms which also stand for the contestation over the norms and values that should inform the international common good. This contestation happens not between, but across different power poles, regions or cultures. It is therefore an honour to welcome our keynote speaker Michael Zürn, who has for a very long time reflected on world governance and ‘Weltinnenpolitik’ (world domestic politics).

On behalf of CEEISA, I truly hope you will enjoy our joint convention in Ljubljana. Many people have worked to make this happen. My most sincere gratitude goes to the CEEISA and ISA staff, to our program chairs Glen Palmer and Wolfgang Wagner, as well as to our local organisers at the University of Ljubljana, Ana Bojinović Fenko and Boštjan Udovič with their team.

I wish you all a great convention!

ABOUT OUR ORGANIZATION

CENTRAL AND EAST EUROPEAN INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ASSOCIATION (CEEISA)

The CEEISA is an individual-based open membership professional organization which was established in 1996 to create a network of researchers in Central and Eastern Europe in the field of international studies and thus support the development of this field and the individual professional development of its members.

In this respect, it has already created a significant network of researchers from the region and/or interested in Central and Eastern Europe. The CEEISA main aims are to enable meetings and exchange of research results of researchers from Central and Eastern Europe and to enhance co-operation within the region so as to secure a more tangible IR output to the global scientific community.

Representing around 30 countries, the CEEISA has more than 140 members worldwide. The membership is organized into self-organizing sections according to disciplinary interest.

The CEEISA is a member of the World International Studies Committee (WISC).

For more information on our organization and upcoming events, check out our website at www.ceeisa.org.
Welcome from the ISA President

T.V. Paul

President, International Studies Association (ISA), 2016-2017
James McGill Professor of International Relations at McGill University

I am pleased to welcome you all to the 11th joint conference of the Central and East European International Studies Association (CEEIISA) and the International Studies Association (ISA) in Ljubljana, June 23-25, 2016. It is a testament to the hard work, dedication and cooperation of the scholars of the region as well as the larger ISA network to hold this successful conference year after year. This year’s theme focusing on the domestic roots of international politics in particular is very timely. With some major changes taking place in the internal politics of all key countries, especially in Europe and the Americas, it is worth exploring the domestic roots of foreign policy as well as international relations in general. I notice that over 300 participants will discuss varieties of related topics, showing a high level of diversity and intellectual breadth that our two associations represent. The graduate student symposium and audience participation panels are innovative ideas and hopefully will provoke interest beyond the traditional scholarly audience.

We at ISA want to thank in particular the Slovenian team and the valuable support of the University of Ljubljana, the city of Ljubljana, and the national government of Slovenia. I am happy to note the program chairs Wolfgang Martin Wagner and Glenn Palmer have assembled such an intellectually stimulating program and the beautiful city of Ljubljana once again is the venue for this great conference.

I wish you all much success, stimulating discussions, and enjoyment!

About Our Organization

International Studies Association (ISA)
The International Studies Association (ISA) was founded in 1959 to promote research and education in international affairs. Representing over 100 countries, and with over seven thousand members in North America and around the world, ISA is the most respected and widely known scholarly association in this field. ISA cooperates with more than 60 international studies organizations in over 30 countries, is a member of the International Social Science Council, and enjoys non-governmental consultative status with the United Nations.

Endeavoring to create communities of scholars dedicated to international studies, ISA is divided into 6 geographic subdivisions of ISA (Regions), 29 thematic groups (Sections) and 4 Caucuses which provide opportunities to exchange ideas and research with local colleagues and within specific subject areas.

Traveling to, in and around Ljubljana

Traveling by Plane

The Jože Pučnik Airport (LJU) is situated 26 km away from the city centre, reachable by bus, shuttle bus, and taxi.

GoOpti transfer, which is located opposite the airport, is the official carrier of the conference and will take you to your desired drop-off location. We advise you to book the service in advance (https://www.goopti.com/en/events/ceeisa-isa-2016-joint-international-conference-ljubljana).

Several airports in the neighbouring countries are relatively near as well and you might find cheaper tickets there: e.g. Trieste-Ronchi, Venice – Marco Polo di Tessera (VCE), Zagreb, Graz, Klagenfurt, and Vienna. GoOpti also travels to these locations, but you need to book the service in advance.

Traveling by Train

Ljubljana has good railway links with Austria (Vienna, Klagenfurt, Graz), Germany (Munich), Croatia (Zagreb, Rijeka), Hungary (Budapest), and Italy (Trieste). The main train station in Ljubljana (Železniška postaja) is situated in the city centre – a 10-minute walk to the old town. To reach Ljubljana by rail, you can check the timetables by going to: http://www.slo-zeleznice.si/en/passenger-transport/travelling-abroad.

Traveling by Coach

The bus station (Avtobusna postaja Ljubljana) is situated in front of the main train station. The station also serves long distance buses. To reach Ljubljana by coach, you can check the timetable by going to: http://www.ap-ljubljana.si/eng.

Traveling by Car

Reaching Ljubljana by car, do not risk driving on the motorways without a road toll vignette, since the fines are heavy. Vignettes (stickers) can be bought at any petrol station.

Traveling by City Bus

To reach the Faculty of Social Sciences from the city centre take bus lines 6 (direction ‘Črnuče’; get off at the ‘Mercator’ stop), 8 (direction ‘Brničeva’; get off at the ‘Mercator’ stop), 11 (direction ‘Ježica’; get off at the ‘Mercator’ stop) from Bavarski dvor. A map of bus routes can be found at: http://www.jhl.si/sites/default/files/lpp_si/stran/datoteke/shema.pdf.

You will need to buy an URBANA card for 2.00 EUR at one of the city street kiosks, or Urbanomats, selected post offices or at tourist information centres, and top it up (a single ticket in the city centre costs 1.20 EUR and includes a 90-minute bus switching period). The ride must be paid after entering the bus by validating the card at a card reader. You can also use your Urbana card to pay for using the funicular to/from Ljubljana Castle. Find out more: http://www.jhl.si/en/single-city-card-urbana.

Tourism Excursions & Leisure

We’re delighted that our partners at the University of Ljubljana and the City of Ljubljana have helped arrange several sight-seeing options for conference participants.

- Half-day trip to Bled (Saturday, 25 June) 55 € (1 person) / 98 € (2 people)
- Half-day trip to Postojna Caves (Saturday, 25 June) 69 € (1 person) / 128 € (2 people)
- All-Day Tour of the Slovenian Coast (Sunday, 26 June) 79 € (1 person) / 145 € (2 people)

The two half-day trips will leave on Saturday from the Faculty of Social Sciences (FDV) following the end of the conference. Attendees who have already reserved their tickets are asked to gather at 2:30pm. Participants of both excursions will be returning to Ljubljana in the evening. Sunday’s excursion is an all-day event, with those participants with reservations leaving at 9:00am and returning around 9:00pm.

For additional ideas on what to see in Ljubljana and other Slovenian places of interest to visit during your stay see: http://www.visitljubljana.com/en/tours-and-excursions/ or CurioCity at http://www.curioCity.si/.
