INTERNATIONAL STUDIES CONFERENCE
SECOND GLOBAL SOUTH
Voices from Outside: Re-shaping International Relations Theory and Practice in an era of Global Transformation
8th – 10th JANUARY 2015
CO-SPONSORED BY
International Studies Association Global South Caucus and Singapore Management University, Singapore
Regional Architecture and Framework for Cooperation in the Asia-Pacific

With rising tensions in East Asia, does it still make sense to think about cooperation in the Asia-Pacific in terms of regional architectures today? What are the challenges facing efforts at building institutions and regimes for the region and how can they be overcome? What can be a useful approach to managing relations in the region? Leading the conversation are three prominent thinkers of international relations today.

G. John Ikenberry is the Albert G. Milbank Professor of Politics and International Affairs at Princeton University in the Department of Politics and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. He is also Co-Director of Princeton’s Center for International Security Studies. Professor Ikenberry has authored numerous important publications, including After Victory: Institutions, Strategic Restraint, and the Rebuilding of Order after Major Wars (Princeton University Press, 2001), which won the 2002 Schroeder-Jervis Award presented by the American Political Science Association for the best book in international history and politics.

Takashi Inoguchi is currently President of University of Niigata Prefecture, and Professor Emeritus at the University of Tokyo. He is also former Assistant Secretary General of the United Nations assigned to The United Nations University Headquarters. He has published more than 100 books and numerous articles in the broad range of subjects, while focusing on Japan and international affairs. He is also a member of the Science Council of Japan and Founding Editor of The Japanese Journal of Political Science (Cambridge University Press) and International Relations of the Asia-Pacific (Oxford University Press).

Ja Ian Chong is assistant professor of political science and an associate research fellow with the East Asian Institute at the National University of Singapore. Dr. Chong’s work crosses the fields of international relations and comparative politics, with a focus on security issues relating to China and East Asia. His work appears in the China Quarterly, The European Journal of International Relations, International Security, and Security Studies. Dr. Chong is author of External Intervention and the Politics of State Formation: China, Thailand, Indonesia – 1893-1952 (Cambridge, 2012), winner of the 2013 Best Book Award from the International Security Studies Section of the International Studies Association.

Prior to this event, the workshop on the same theme will be held on 8 & 9 January. If you are interested in attending, please contact the organizer at: asiancentury@nus.edu.sg

The International Studies Association (ISA)’s Global South Caucus (GSCIS) and the Singapore Management University are pleased to welcome you to the second Global South International Studies Conference. The GSCIS is open to members of ISA who study global south regions, the south as a whole, relevant global south societies in the north, and relations between the north and the south. The caucus provides a channel for the sharing of research, information and ideas among scholars and practitioners of/in the various regions of the south. In addition to encouraging work on Africa, Asia and Latin America, the caucus includes a special initiative on developing Eurasia.

Our co-sponsor, the Singapore Management University (SMU), is internationally recognized for its world-class research and distinguished teaching. Established in 2000, SMU’s mission is to generate leading-edge research with a global impact and produce broad-based, creative and entrepreneurial leaders for the knowledge-based economy. With an emphasis on generating rigorous, high-impact, multi-disciplinary research that addresses Asian issues of global relevance, SMU faculty members collaborate with leading international researchers and universities from the USA, Europe, China and India as well as with partners in the business community and public sector through its research institutes and centers.

The theme of this conference, “Voices from the Outside: Re-shaping International Relations and Practice in an Era of Global Transformation,” was developed in view of the mutuality of interests between the caucus and ISA’s first president from the global south, Professor Amitav Acharya (American University, Washington). Recognizing that international relations research and scholarship is deficient with respect to the inclusion of perspectives from the south, the caucus aims, through conferences such as these, to pioneer the integration of marginalized voices into “mainstream” scholarship. The panels and papers put together for this conference should therefore advance this goal.

We welcome you to the conference, to the SMU campus, and to Singapore, a city-state that, in the view of many, has made the leap from global south to global north in a single generation. We hope that you will find the presentations and events held over these few days to be intellectually and socially stimulating, and that you also take the time to explore some of the attractions of our host country as well.

For regular updates on the work of the GSCIS, see http://gscis.blogspot.com/.

The Conference Team wishes to thank all participants for assisting us in putting the conference together.

The caucus wishes to extend very special thanks to Professor Arnoud de Meyer, President of Singapore Management University. Professor de Meyer holds a Ph.D. in Management from State University of Ghent in Belgium) Before joining Judge Business School, Professor De Meyer was associated for 23 years with INSEAD as a professor and as Dean for the MBA programme, Executive Education and the Euro Asia Centre. He was also the founding Dean of INSEAD'S Asia Campus in Singapore. Professor De Meyer has been a part-time professor at the University of Antwerp and Ghent in Belgium, and was a visiting professor at the University of Kiel, Waseda University in Tokyo, Keio University in Tokyo, and the Birla Institute of Technology in India.
Amitav Acharya, President of the International Studies Association in 2014, is the UNESCO Chair in Transnational Challenges and Governance and Chair of the ASEAN Studies Center. Previously, he was Professor of Global Governance at the University of Bristol, Professor at York University, Toronto, and at Nanyang Technological University, Singapore, Fellow of the Harvard University Asia Center, and Fellow of Harvard’s John F. Kennedy School of Government. His recent books include Whose Ideas Matter? (Cornell, 2009); Beyond Iraq: The Future of World Order (co-edited, World Scientific, 2011); Non-Western International Relations Theory (co-edited, Routledge, 2010); and The Making of Southeast Asia (Cornell, 2011).

Jacqueline Braveboy-Wagner, Chair of the Global South Caucus, is Professor of Political Science and The Colin Powell School of Civic and Global Leadership (City College) and at The Graduate School and University Center of The City University of New York. She has written nine books with two others forthcoming. She specialized in foreign policy and development issues, particularly with respect to small states (and specifically Caribbean states) as well as the nations of the global south in general. Books include: Diplomatic Strategies of Leading Nations in the Global South: Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the Middle East. (Palgrave Macmillan, forthcoming 2015); Institutions of the Global South (Routledge, 2009/2010); Small States in Global Affairs: The Foreign Policies of the Caribbean Community (CARICOM) (Palgrave-Macmillan 2007); and The Foreign Policies of the Global South: Rethinking Conceptual Frameworks (edited; Lynne Rienner Publishers, 2003).

Thomas J. Volgy is a Professor of Political Science at the University of Arizona and the Executive Director of the International Studies Association. Thomas J. Volgy received his MA and PhD degrees from the University of Minnesota. He teaches courses primarily in international politics at the undergraduate, honors, and graduate levels. Previously, he was honored as the college’s best teacher for his efforts. Dr. Volgy’s research interests center on the international system and international structures, formal and informal. In addition to numerous journal articles, he co-authored International Politics and State Strength (2003) about the nature of the post-Cold War global architecture in International Politics and his latest work on regions and status has appeared in Major Powers and the Quest for Status in International Politics (2011) and Regional and International Relations of Central Europe (2012). Apart from his research and teaching interests, he has been active in the local and global community. He served in office for 14 years, including as Mayor of Tucson, and he assisted in democratization and public policy training programs in East Europe and Central Asia Between 1989 and the present.
The Global South Caucus (GSCIS) is open to members of all sections of the International Studies Association (ISA) (www.isanet.org) who study the global south regions, the south as a whole, relevant south societies in the north, or relations between the north and south. The Global South Caucus is a “trans-sectional” network that aims to:

- provide a channel for the sharing of research, information and ideas among scholars and practitioners of/in the various regions of the south;

- promote the ISA as the premier forum for the dissemination of cross-regional global south research;

- encourage south scholars to participate in the association’s conferences (via GS panels as well as proposals to the relevant sections) and other initiatives;

- encourage south scholars to publish in ISA journals;

- work with the ISA committees and sections to encourage graduate students to work on south issues and regions, and engage in professional development activities intended to improve the employment opportunities and advancement in the profession of south-oriented scholars.

The Global South Caucus provides a wonderful opportunity for scholars of the south to work together. If you are working in any way on thematic or area studies that can be designated as pertaining to the “south,” we welcome you to join the caucus. Inquire at the conference helpdesk or drop an email to Prof Braveboy-Wagner at jbraveboy-wagner@gc.cuny.edu.
